GIVE THEM A RAISE IN PAY

Application of policemen and firemen for a $25 a month increase in pay rests with the common council which soon will meet as a committee of the whole to consider the request. Members of both departments are to be called in to discuss the matter with the aldermen.

We believe the policemen and firemen have the approval of most of the taxpayers in their application for better pay. The Trades and Labor council, which usually looks askance at the salaries paid municipal employees, has unanimously endorsed the increased pay. According to information compiled by the government, there is a considerable increase in the cost of living over a year ago and the tendency is for costs to go higher. A comparison of the salaries paid Appleton policemen and firemen with salaries paid in other Wisconsin cities of Appleton's class, shows the scale here to be below the average of Badger towns.

The people generally are taking these things into consideration and we believe the council should also do it. The budget for the year 1924 soon will be prepared and provision can be made at that time to raise the additional money that will be required. There will be little protest because of the very slight increase in taxes which the well-merited raise in pay will cause.

CROP DIVERSIFICATION AND CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING

The soundest advice which the farmer and the business man have heard relative to the production and marketing of wheat is contained in the report which the two investigating directors of the War Finance corporation, Chairman Eugene Meyer, Jr., and Mr. Frank W. Mondell, have made to President Coolidge. They recommend that the annual production of wheat should be so regulated by the farmers as to coincide in a practical way with general demand and that a system of co-operative marketing should be constructed with the object of permanently eliminating speculation and uncertainty.

Messrs. Meyer and Mondell toured the wheat-growing areas in the North where they conducted hearings and held conferences. They found that the majority of farmers were opposed to government price-fixing, but favored the suggestion of the government's purchasing the surplus wheat supply.

"It is relatively easy," says the report, "to detect the proposals of those who seek to exploit agricultural distress for their own political purposes. But it is far more difficult to deal with the proposals of sincere and honest-minded people who seek to solve problems by short cuts which are unworkable and which, therefore, are bound to be ineffective."

It is sometimes easy for the observer to note how the farmer is exploited; but it is not so easy for the farmer to see this. The farmer can protect himself from the exploiter and the speculator, and likewise the honest-minded people who propose fantastic short-cuts for his benefit by informing himself of the facts of the industry as an industry.

The farmer does not need to be patronized by the government, or self-seeking politicians, or capital. He does not need gifts or donations. He needs, advice and assistance in operating and organizing agriculture as a business. In the end, he must run his business in adjustment to the law of supply and demand.

Crop diversification and co-operative marketing should solve his problem permanently. They will rectify his difficulties, so that his business will be conducted on economic lines. The report, in stating this, states nothing new. There is nothing new that it could state. But it restates fact.

AIR CONVERSATION

You will soon be able to converse with Europe much the same as you converse with a friend by telephone. You will be able to carry on a conversation by radio as is done every day now by telegraph on leased wires.

A radio signal made twenty round trips, the other day, between New York and Warsaw, Poland. It traveled at a speed of four and a half million miles in twenty-five seconds. The experimenters were satisfied that the test demonstrated the practicality of obtaining immediate or simultaneous acknowledgment of a telegraphic message transmitted by radio.

You can send a radio-telegram somewhere, at a great distance. The recipient can answer it immediately. Whether by the voice or a code, the world will be on intimate speaking terms in not a great while. Communication is actually annihilating time and distance.

POINT OF VIEW

Will Irwin, the well known war correspondent and special writer, analyzed the undercurrents of Europe in an address to the Foreign Policy association, at a luncheon-meeting in New York city. He said that he had found hatred more intense and irrational there than during the war. The Germans bear lies about the French and believe them, and the French hear lies about the Germans, and believe them. Nowhere in Europe is the truth spoken: nowhere does charity prevail: everywhere mendacity and malice overlord candor and honesty.

Are not the principal misunderstandings and dissensions which we have in this country of similar origin? Are not malevolence and discord, imposition and infringement, inflamed by misrepresentation? Men do not try to take the point of view of other men, as a rule: if they did, there would be less suspicion, prejudice and contention. If you hear calumny or insinuation against some one, put yourself in that person's place, and think from his point of view. You will be just and charitable, if you do this. The good which you attribute to yourself, you will generally concede by substituting yourself for him, him for yourself.

THE WAR VETERANS' BUREAU

From the evidence which the senate investigating committee is obtaining in its hearing, the public is led to the conclusion that the men who fought against militarism in the World war have been grievously mistreated by the United States Veterans' bureau. The officers of this bureau have, it appears, truckled to influential politicians and have padded disability claims of impostors, diverting public money appropriated for the benefit of maimed, ill and incapacitated veterans.

Never, at any time, since the war's close, has the government really managed the problems of the veterans' relief with intelligence or efficiency, and the work, has been stained with not a little profiteering. In this, our first duty, we have failed in too large a degree.

The evidence at the hearing is simply amazing. Testifying to the senate committee, Dr. David O. Smith, of the Veterans' bureau, said: "In a bureau of this kind, men are selected not so much for ability as for their cohesive qualities. They stick together."

What will we do about it? Scrap the Veterans' bureau? Reorganize it? Or establish a new institution and appoint to high and low offices in it men of integrity and ability? Or entrust the treasury, war and navy departments with care of disabled veterans? Certainly we must right the wrong without delay. The neglect to which these men have been subjected is to our national discredit.

CHASING THE RAINBOW

Is it true, a reader asks, that gout is less prevalent in certain regions of the United States than it is in other regions of the country? Is it true that a notorious individual now living in a region of marked prevalence of gout will get rid of the gout if he moves to a region where gout is rare? Simple gout is much more common in certain regions of the United States than in other regions. In the region of the Great Lakes simple gout is notably prevalent, as many as one-third of the school children in some of the cities of this region having more or less thyroid enlargement. In parts of West Virginia gout is frequent; 50 per cent of the school girls in Huntington were found affected. In the state of Washington gout is notably prevalent; 18 per cent of the 2,685 men at the University of Washington had gout, and 31 per cent of the 1,252 women students there had it. In 1924, Of 21,182 troops at Camp Lewis, Washington, 21 per cent had gout. In one high school in Grand Rapids, Mich., half of the pupils had gout. Out of a total of 12,431 school boys examined in Grand Rapids 2,593 had gout, while out of a total of 13,548 school girls 5,236 had gout.

The cause of this extraordinary prevalence of gout in certain regions, as we now know, is shortage of iodine in food or water. In many cities of the Great Lakes region it is now the custom to give every school pupil a minute dose of iodine about once a week; this practice has practically annihilated gout in the progressive communities where the plan has been adopted. Moving to another part of the country would be of no avail, so far as prevention or cure of simple gout is concerned, unless by chance you happened to get food or water containing a sufficient iodine ration in the new abode.

People are gradually coming to their senses about this rainbow chasing sport. No doubt the successful treatment of tuberculosis in hospitals or sanatoriums in every part of the country, the happy results obtained in every part of the country, have some influence upon the wicked old myth of going away to another climate in quest of a cure. The first lesson the victim of tuberculosis has got to learn, still one of the hardest for him to learn, is that the constant counsel and guidance of a physician is a part of the cure. The adventure of going away to chase the rainbow on his own impulse is needless.

I got pinched and fired the other day for breaking a law I didn't know existed. My ignorance was no excuse and brought me no sympathy. The individual with a battle with tuberculosis on his mind, a little sympathy in the form of enlightenment, if it gets him out of chasing the rainbow, without the advice and very specific instructions of his physician. This applies to either side, whether one comes from the other climate here or go from here to the other climate.

I receive many inquiries about the advisability of changing climate in the chase of that trouble, from many parts of the country—everybody wants to swap one slightly used climate for what have you. My answer is always—"Don't unless your doctor advises the move."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Save The Children

Is it possible for a child to have the house with other children who have diphtheria, not to catch it? They have to use the same bath room and hall. Can antitoxin be given to keep one from taking diphtheria? If so, where is there a place in the city where they give it free?—Mrs. B. J.

Answer—A few children are naturally immune and will not catch diphtheria even though exposed. Many children are susceptible and likely to come down with the disease when exposed, that is, when they come into intimate or personal contact with one who has the disease or with a "carrier" of the diphtheria germs. If your own doctor does not make the test and give the anti-diphtheria serum, consult the health department. Any physician may determine by means of the Schick test whether your children are susceptible to diphtheria and immunize them if they prove susceptible.

Government Of Yucatan Holds Hemp Control

(Gregory Mason, in Travel.)

The failure of the American people to become interested in a picturesque communist government set up at the very doorstep of the United States by an Indian revolution is one of the enigmas of popular psychology.

Most of the grain of the United States is bound into sheaves by twine made from sisal hemp. Most of the world's sisal hemp comes from benevolent plants grown in Yucatan. A fundamental principle with the various revolutionary dictators of Yucatan has been to boost the price of hemp through governmental monopoly. The war between Yucatan producers and American consumers of the great hemp crop has had many dramatic phases, including an investigation by the United States senate, and the end is not yet.

Gov. Carrillo not only gives the laborer free for a year in the most extraordinary labor law, the world has ever seen, to cite only a few fair specimens of its remarkable provisions; if you discharge an employee for the very best of reasons, you must nevertheless permit him to live, rent free, for a year in the quarters the law has forced you to provide for him, and if you have a business in Yucatan and decide you would like to close up and move to Sonora or Texas you will do so only after the confiscation of your entire property, which the government gives itself the legal right to seize for the benefit of your former employees. If a worker who has been in your employ for as much as three months, dies from any cause whatsoever, you must pass his family a sum equivalent to his wages for one year.

The Yucatecans seem happy but serious. They smile much but laugh little. They are beautiful, shy people who look as if they understood the art of living.

But whatever we may say about the revolutionary handling of the land problem, it is fairly fair to point out that they have accomplished a great deal of good in education. A few years ago Yucatan's 350,000 people had only a handful of schools. Today they have 540 state schools and 27 private schools.

As Mexican politics go, the revolution in Yucatan has been comparatively free from bloodshed. And although the property rights of foreigners residing in the country have suffered, the human rights of all foreigners have generally been respected.

Success Means Devoledped Mind

(B. C. Forbes in Forbes Magazine.)
Every one of us should consider whether we are to become a manual or a mental worker. Not all non-manual workers are mental workers. Many men work with their hands nor their minds. They are workers. It takes effort to become an effective manual worker. A man can learn to dig a ditch or drive a truck in a few weeks or months. But it takes years to develop into an efficient brain worker. Many youths elect to become manual workers because of higher monetary rewards at the start. A headworker gets more pay than an apprentice bricklayer. But the headworker is likely to remain a

It consists of 40,000 vertical, closely fitting columns of basalt, ranging from 15 to 18 inches, and is formed into three sections, known as Little, Middle and Honeycomb Causeway. The "Wishing Chair," with two arms and a back and the "Lady's Fan," are on the Middle Causeway. At the starting point is the "Giant's Leap" to the left, the "Giant's Well" to the right, the "Giant's Chair." An electric tramway now connects the town of Portrush with the "Causeway."

Q. When and where did medicine originate? J. A. S.

Q. When is Eleanora Duse coming to this country? S. T.

Friends Mourn Tragic Death Of Airedale

Jerry is dead and the mailman makes his rounds alone.

After having been hit by an automobile on Saturday, Jerry, the airedale dog owned by J. Henry Harbeck, died on Wednesday. He leaves behind him more acquaintances than perhaps any other dog in the city. Jerry was the inseparable companion of Florian Harriman, the mailman whose route takes him into the southern part of the first and second wards.

People along the route missed the dog when he did not appear Monday morning and by Tuesday everyone was asking where he was. Mr. Harriman was worried too because his pal did not wait for him at Lawrence conservatory nor at the college library. For years, Jerry has not missed a day and even while Mr. Harriman was on his vacation, the dog would come every day to go the rounds with him, and wait in vain for him.

It is only those who really understand the companionship of dogs who can sympathize with the friends of Jerry when they choke up and become misty-eyed about him. He was their friend and he is dead. Mrs. Georgia Bentley, secretary to Dr. Plantz, who has seen to it that Jerry has a pan of fresh water waiting for him in the library entrance, has removed the pan which can no longer serve its purpose. Jerry is dead.

Miss Cecelia Kroenke of Kimberly was the guest of Miss Myrtle Poehlman at Sugar Bush for the last few days.

Miss Altha Nelson is visiting friends in Manitowoc.

Many good seats still were available for the Graveyard number when the office at the conservatory closed Friday evening and these will be sold at the chapel. It is expected that Graveyard will be met by a very enthusiastic audience. Most of the people who heard him last year are anticipating his concert with pleasure and others who missed his last concert are determined not to miss this one.

War Dept. Employee Offers Strong Proof

"The Tanlac treatment is good in the fullest sense of the word," is the concise manner in which P. M. Hubbard, 318 Cameron-st., Alexandria, Va., a clerk in the War Department, Washington, D. C., recently spoke of his experience with the medicine. "For more than a year past I have suffered from a nervous run-down condition. My digestive organs did not work right. I had little appetite and what I did eat failed to give me proper nourishment. My rest at night was broken, my nerves unstrung. I was considerably under weight, had lost much energy and always felt more or less lagged out. "I bought Tanlac on the advice of a friend and can say that it fully met my needs in every way. I now feel stronger and better by far than I have gained up in weight and energy and feel renewed in every way." Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 27 million bottles sold. Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills. adv.

STUDENTS WORK ON PROGRAM TO BOOST GOOD ENGLISH WEEK

High School Pupils Write Plays That Show Shabbiness Of Slang

Grammar reviews, good English slogans and posters, and two dramas are among the things which will feature good English week at Appleton high school from Nov. 12 to 16. Every student in the high school English classes will submit a poster for the class prizes to be offered. The best of the four prize winners posters will take the school poster prize.

On Wednesday and Thursday, two dramas written by students will be presented in the assembly room of the high school. The plays are "A Sweet Pickle" by Richard Neller and Beverly Murphy and "The Best of Enemies" by Maurice Lewis. Each of these plays demonstrates the harmfulness of slang in speech.

All the junior and senior English classes have written plays for this event. Many of them are clever plots which show the shabbiness of slang. There are many more that are worthy of presentation.

Since no literature has been sent out this year concerning national good English week, the English department of Appleton high school set its own dates for its campaign against slovenly speech. Miss Olga Achtenhagen is chairman of the committee in charge. She is assisted by Hester Harper, Adela Klumb, Dorothy Kusch, Dorothy Jones, Letha Emburgh, Miss Smith and Robert Berkman.

Maple Creek Couple Celebrates 60th Anniversary Of Marriage

Maple Creek—Sixty years of wedded life were rounded out Sunday Nov. 4, by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stengraber of Maple Creek, who are shown in the above picture, the two center figures of the bottom row. The others are their nine children, Mrs. Lena Glock, Manawa; Mrs. Emma Felsner and Mrs. Hulda Becker, New London; Mrs. Ben Miller, Poyippi; Mrs. Ida Ruck, Goshel, Sugar Bush; Richard Stengraber, Lebanon; Edward Stengraber, New London; Henry and August Stengraber, Maple Creek.

Elaborate plans had been made for a celebration in honor of this privilege which rarely comes to a couple, but owing to the illness of Mrs. Stengraber, who is 81, the day was passed quietly at their rooms at the home of their son, August. Mr. Stengraber is 84 and in good health. Relatives spent the day at the home and many friends called to offer their congratulations. Henry Stengraber was married Nov. 4, 1863 to Emma Eldebrandt at the village church at Kruszen, Germany. Their first happiness was dimmed by the death of their three children within 24 hours from a contagious disease.

Endeavoring to forget their misfortune the couple followed other relatives to America and arrived at Watertown in 1873. Shortly afterward they came to their present home at Maple Creek and have raised a family of nine children. They have 29 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren.

GIVES IMMIGRANT CHILDREN START

James A. Robb, Canadian Official, Is Called Wholesale Godfather

Ottawa, Ont.—"Godfather to Thousands" is the unofficial title of James A. Robb, minister of immigration and colonization in the Canadian government.

His foster children are British war orphans and homeless little ones from city streets brought overseas to take a new start. Since the beginning of this century, 75,000 boys and girls from Great Britain have been received, their ages ranging from 3 to 18.

Each immigrant youngster is directly a ward of the government and under the supervision of Minister Robb's department. They are selected by philanthropic organizations and upon their arrival are placed in the homes of substantial farmers. Already, many of the earlier juvenile immigrants have become influential citizens. At the close of the last fiscal year, 2638 boys and 575 girls were sharing the minister's godfather-ship.

"British children on Canadian farms," is the slogan under which we are working," says Robb. "No better outlet can be found for the overflowing population in the British Isles, and Canada can obtain no better material for citizenship than these children of kindred blood, brought up from their early youth as Canadian citizens."

Although the children when received are on an apprentice status, many are adopted into families and rapidly assimilated in the new community. The Canadian child immigration plan is without parallel in United States practice.

QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salt If Your Back Hurts, or Bladder is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much, rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, or if you are full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year. adv.

EIGHT ALIENS PASS TESTS FOR RIGHT TO BE U. S. CITIZENS

One Petitioner Advised To Learn To Write Before Filing Papers

Nine petitioners for citizenship appeared before United States Examiner George N. Danielson of St. Paul at the courthouse on Thursday and were examined by him before they filed their petitions with the clerk of circuit court. One of the applicants was unable to sign his name and he was advised to attend night school and meet the examiner at some future time when he had learned to write.

Under the new plan of the United States department of labor all petitioners for second papers should be examined by the examiner before they file their petitions. This is to ward off the alien. Hereafter there have been thousands of petitions for citizenship dismissed in the United States, as the witnesses had not known the applicant for five years or other requirements of equal importance had not been looked after. Under this new plan, the examiner sees to it that everything is regular before the petition is filed.

Only under extraordinary circumstances can the clerk of court now file a petition for citizenship without the presence of the examiner. Aliens who are contemplating the filing of petitions should appear before the clerk without witnesses and procure from him a blank form to be filled out and mailed to St. Paul with their first papers. Then the examiner will notify the applicant when to appear before him at the court house. If the alien appears for the first time when the examiner is at the courthouse it is not necessary for him to fill out a blank unless he came to the United States after June 29, 1905 and needs a certificate of arrival. Examiner Danielson will give the clerk and the press at least a week's notice in advance of his visits to Appleton so that the alien may be informed as when to appear.

SWEDEN FACES NEED OF AIDING FARMERS

By Associated Press
Stockholm — A crucial problem in Sweden has arisen from the failure of agriculture to keep pace with the general recovery from post-war depression. In the effort to help the farmers to faster profits on their labor and investments, the Riksdag and government have studied the question of restricting the importation of foreign agricultural products. But all this, so far, has been of little help. The farmers are at an economic disadvantage because, while the general price index in Sweden has come down to 70 per cent above the pre-war price level, the selling price for grain has been forced down to 50 per cent above the pre-war level. A crying need at present is the downward revision of wages for farm labor, which are more than 50 per cent above the average for 1914. A conference of experts has been called by the Minister of Agriculture and it is rumored that the question of state credit has been taken up with the idea of advancing loans to enable the farmer to hold over his grain for better prices.

TWINS, TRIPLETS KEEP HER GUESSING

Cleveland, O.—Life is an unceasing circle of identical tasks to Mrs. Charles Wilson here. Each morning she washes five identical faces. Combs five identical heads of hair. And sets out five identical dresses after preparing five identical breakfasts. Then she proceeds to school with five identical-looking children. In a relay of trips she takes one batch across the street and then comes back for another, doing the same identical thing day in and day out. All are here—a set of identical twins and another brace of identical triplets. The quintet have E. D. W. as their identical initials. And all do the same identical things. The identical triplets, Evelyn Doris, Evelyn Dorothy and Emma Dolores, came eight years ago. Three years later they were joined by the twins, Eloise Delma and Eunice Doris, also identical. To start them to classes this year, Mrs. Wilson made 11 identical sets of bloomers and 11 sets of dresses. The outfit provides four apiece and one for emergency. Mrs. Wilson is 27 and does all her own work. None of her bustling brood has ever been sick a day. And the only way teachers can tell the twins apart is because Eloise got too near a frying pan a day or so ago and seared her nose. Otherwise all is well in the identical Wilson home. But the mother thinks strategy will have to be resorted to before long. She's considering trying variegated colored rubbers to the identical children to identify them. "They were lots of work when they were little," Mrs. Wilson says. "But now, I don't see how I could get along without them. "Happy? "That's identically just the word."

Good Salesman Can Sell Safety Razors To Russians, Yadon Tells Advertisers

Interesting Story Of Merchandising Enterprise Is Told At Advertising Association Convention

How the success of the great Bradley Knitting company was built upon an idea and a simple yet ingenious advertising device was described by Y. D. Yadon, its noted advertising manager, to the great interest of the Northeastern Advertisers' association at the banquet in the Venetian room of the Conway hotel Thursday evening.

The effective distribution of an attractive style book together with good salesmanship broke down the barriers to sales of bathing suits even in the barren diversity state of Nebraska. It was brought out by the advertising manager of the company that is better known than the city—Delevan, Wis.—in which it is located. It was the closing session of the one-day convention of advertisers from northeastern Wisconsin. The conference adjourned without definitely selecting a place or a date for the next meeting. But inasmuch as several Neenah "ad men" volunteered to obtain the support of their city, it was unanimously understood that the meeting would take place there, probably in February.

SING "PIE SONG"
Carl McKee led the advertisers in community singing, a feat made all the more remarkable by his acrobatic performance at the piano and which lacked only an opportunity to hurl a few custard pies a la Chaplin, while the crowd sang "Pie, Pie, We Want Some Pie" to the tune of "Hail, Hail, The Gang's All Here."

Ralph Gee introduced William Sterling, chairman of the conference, who introduced the "coastermaster," J. D. Steele, who in turn introduced the principal speaker of the evening. Mr. Steele introduced the speaker as one who was able to sell bathing suits even to those whose favorite form of cleansing was by the dry cleaning process. Even in chastening his newborn babe Mr. Yadon believed in advertising. Mr. Steele bantered. The boy received the initials of W. G. N. Schenckstadt. The Western Electric company, when informed of the fact, shipped the infant a complete radio set.

Bradley Knitting company, was after its first two years of operation saved from bankruptcy when two retail merchants of Delevan took over the concern and tried to make a success of it. Mr. Yadon said in beginning. (His address was less a lecture on how to advertise than a recital of the story how advertising paid the Bradley Knitting company.)

KNOW RETAILERS
The new proprietors knew little of the manufacturing business or of the product they undertook to market. But they had the retailers' viewpoint of the business and knew what the merchant wanted and centralized that knowledge by sending direct to the retail merchants whereas the predecessors had sold only to jobbers.

Their next important step was to publish and circulate in 1925 a small six-page style book illustrating their knit products and giving the most necessary printed details, including the retail price. The next year this booklet was followed by one printed in colors. The book was in succeeding years improved from time to time and the circulation increased from 1,600 in 1925 to 75,000 in 1931 and 125,000 in 1932.

It was then that the manufacturers discussed a means whereby the style books could be distributed where they would do the most good. After one customer had ordered 5,000 books but failed to distribute more than 50, it was determined that the circulation would be insured if a small price were put on the book. Its publication cost the company about 5 cents. Would the trade submit to paying for the book? It was a new venture in advertising. Mr. Yadon undertook to sell the booklets at 12 cents each.

SELL CATALOGS

At once the circulation of the booklets began to multiply. From a circulation of 25,000 in 1925 it grew to 500,000 in 1929, 1,000,000 in 1930, 1,500,000 in 1931, 2,000,000 in 1932, 2,225,000 for 1933 and 3,500,000 for 1934. The company is now the second largest style book distributor in the United States. The greater distribution of the style books brought greater sales. One customer who had been sold $683 worth of goods took 600 books and then ordered $721 worth of goods thereafter. A second customer buying $754 worth took 1,300 books and later ordered $540 by mail. A third having been sold $41 worth after receiving 500 books placed a mail order for $850 more.

Distribution is made by the knitting company direct. They receive address lists from the retail merchants and address the mail matter at the plant for the merchant, besides giving the merchant's imprint on the booklets.

SELL SWIMMING POOLS

Salesmen throughout the United States doubled their sales. But the Nebraska salesman struck a stone wall when he endeavored to sell bathing suits in that state. There were no places in which to swim. The sales manager then suggested selling the state of Nebraska bathing pools. And that is just what was done. The salesman obtained the cooperation of a merchant and a fund was subscribed for a swimming pool. Six swimming pools were built that year as the result of the salesman's efforts.

The company capitalized this idea also and soon began issuing booklets on building swimming pools. In one month there came 3,000 requests for that booklet. As a result of the circulation of the booklet, 3,000 pools have been built within three years. This number the company has been able to trace, although it is evident that the book built others of which the company has no definite knowledge. This booklet occasioned a demand for an instructive pamphlet on swimming. Publication of a swimming booklet resulted in 2,700 requests in one year. They are now printed by the million. Thus one idea led to another. And the end is not yet. And it all helped to make sales for bathing suits even there where the prospect was as bright as the sale of safety razors in Russia.

BUICK SUCCESS IN SQUARE DEAL PLAN

Obligation To Motoring Public Fulfilled Faithfully For Over 20 Years

Butick's nation-wide dealer and service organization is a frequent subject of comment in the motor field. And there is one thought that always arises in the mind of anyone who considers this widespread organization for a moment.

There must be some fundamental reasons why the Buick selling organization is composed of so many men who have been Buick dealers for years.

Why is it that these men are satisfied with the Buick contract year after year and why are so many other dealers anxious to make a contract to sell Buick cars?

It is because Buick, for more than twenty years, has fulfilled to the limit its obligations of fair dealing with the motoring public and with the dealer. Buick fair dealing applies to every phase of the motor industry. It means the manufacture of a car that gives one hundred per cent service to its owner and it means a constant effort to serve the owner through Buick Authorized Service; through painstaking research in order that still better cars may be built; and in many other ways.

The public as well as the dealer has been quick to recognize this policy and the constancy with which Buick has held its leading place in the motor car field year after year has given Buick most enviable prestige.

Now Buick prestige and reputation is of immense value to the dealer. It means that there is ahead of him a large proportion of sales that will be made independently of his efforts. Buick has so thoroughly proved its dependability and its value that in every community in the country the Buick sales with the smallest amount of sales effort.

In fact, every Buick dealer is sure of a certain percentage of sales without any preceding sales effort or expense. There will be some of his customers who will buy Buicks without the slightest solicitation from him. Conditions such as this naturally lower the dealer's operating expense and increase his profits. This is one reason why Buick dealers receive their selling contracts year after year.

The Buick dealer and the motoring public know that Buick prestige is based on a firm foundation. They recognize the fact that during a period of twenty years Buick has developed a manufacturing plant that is second to none in size and efficiency. They know that it is a manufacturing plant that has developed the principle of progressive manufacturing with the thought constantly in mind of reducing overhead to a minimum. They know, too, that during this time there has been developed a manufacturing organization consisting of superintendents, foremen and workmen, a large number of whom have spent years in building Buick Valve-in-Head motor cars correctly and efficiently.

It is also generally recognized that Buick has concentrated on one principle of motor car construction, that time has proved to be the correct principle.

Not only is this true in connection with the Buick Valve-in-Head motor but it is true of the Buick clutch, Buick front and rear axles; the Buick frame; and the Buick brakes. At the same time Buick has constantly endeavored to produce a body design that every motorist would be proud to own, thus crowning the mechanical excellence of the Buick product with a body of beautiful design. They have built these bodies in various types, thus affording every motorist an opportunity of purchasing the Buick product with that type of body which best suits his needs. Buick's constant aim is to build for the general public that type of car which will render one hundred per cent efficient service from both the mechanical standpoint and that of the body type. That is another outstanding reason for Buick success.

FORDSON TRACTOR IN HEAVY DEMAND

Both Agriculture And Industry Are Drawing Heavily On 'Factory Supply'

Both agriculture and industry are making increasing demands for the Fordson Tractor.

While the use of the Fordson as a farm implement is extending in every agricultural section of the country as farmers come to realize the advantage and economy of power farming, a most noticeable feature of the sales is the growing use of this sturdy and dependable power plant in industrial and commercial activities.

Contractors and builders are everywhere adapting the Fordson to meet their needs for power, either movable or stationary, and road engineers throughout the country are specifying its use with highway construction machinery.

To meet this growing demand for Fordson Tractors production is now at capacity and for the first three months of the year reached a total of 27,087 as compared with 23,410 for the same period a year ago.

NASH PIONEER IN PRODUCING 'FOUR'

Early Study Of This Type Of Car Has Given Public Remarkable Engine

Quite logically it has been the destiny of the W. Nash to promote the four cylinder motor to new and higher standards of efficiency. A wealth of early experience in the field of fours, dating back to the early days of the industry, together with an instinctive aptitude for pioneering practical improvements, promised success for a line of Nash Fours from the moment they took shape upon the drafting board. Since the first Nash Four left the plant the fundamental motor design based upon the valve-in-head principle as conceived by Nash has been unchanged. It has proved itself beyond reasonable controversy the most efficient motor known. The engineering science that dictated this design has been overwhelmingly confirmed by time, the most severe of critics, and by the actual operative experience of thousands of owners. Sure of the fundamentals Nash committed himself to a never-ending process of refinement and improvement. And this newest Nash Four perfected valve-in-head motor is the closest approach to internal combustion efficiency yet on record. No fine tribute could be paid the unswerving adherence of C. W. Nash to a principle he knew was right than the trend today toward the valve-in-head motor both here in America and abroad, both among automobile buyers and the leading automotive authorities. The London and Paris Automobile Show editions of England's premier automobile trade publication, the Auto Car, stated a year ago that, "One of the most marked features of automobile construction today is the adoption of the overhead valves in the motor models." And corroboratory evidence of this editorial utterance was found in an announcement at that time by Rolls Royce, Lancia, Fiat, Hispano, Sulzer, Peugeot and Vauxhall telling of their conversion to this type of engine. The valve-in-head principle possesses two very distinct advantages. For a motor of given piston displacement more power is derived than in any other type of motor. The combustion chamber being located directly over the piston can be made more compact and of a smaller area than is possible in the L-head or T-head designs. Therefore there is less radiation loss and greater economy of gasoline. Summed up, the valve-in-head gives more power on less gasoline. The valve-in-head motor as perfected by Nash embodies many features of superiority. All valve mechanism is automatically lubricated. Oil is being constantly fed under pressure to all main bearings so that there is no contact of steel with steel. You will observe immediately that the fan mechanism is the only exposed moving part of the Nash Motor. Everything else is entirely encased and thus kept clean and free from foreign substances.

During the last year or two the Chevrolet slogan, "Just Count the Chevrolets," has been on everyone's tongue. Every body it seems has been talking about the remarkable increase in the number of Chevrolet cars seen on city streets and country roads. Stand on any corner for ten minutes and the number of Chevrolets that pass is surprising. Notice the cars parked in any block or in any parking space, and the proportion of Chevrolets to the total is a matter of comment by everyone. All this is due to the tremendous increase in the manufacturing facilities of the Chevrolet Motor company.

In 1921, 77,695 Chevrolet cars and trucks were sold in the United States in Canada and for export. In 1922, more than three times this number were made and sold, or 242,374. In the calendar year of 1923, nearly two times the 1922 total will be sold. Production capacity has been increased to approximately 2,500 cars per day this year, an increase of several hundred per cent within the short space of three years.

During the past three years the growth of Chevrolet manufacturing facilities has been nothing short of phenomenal. Each of the seven older plants manufacturing or assembling Chevrolet cars, trucks and parts has been enlarged and its capacity increased, and five entirely new plants have been added.

FORD PROVES TON TRUCK WOULD TAKE

This Type Of Delivery Car Has Come Into Marked New Popularity

Predictions made early in the year that 1923 would see a large increase in the use of the one-ton truck in both commercial and agricultural fields are being borne out in sales records of the Ford Motor Company here.

The rapidity with which the one-ton truck has come into popularity in delivery and hauling systems is shown in recently compiled figures which disclosed that 80 per cent of all the motor trucks in service in the United States are one-ton or less and indications are that this high ratio will be materially increased during the present year. The growth has come during the last six years during which the one-ton truck jumped from 48 per cent to the 80 per cent mark.

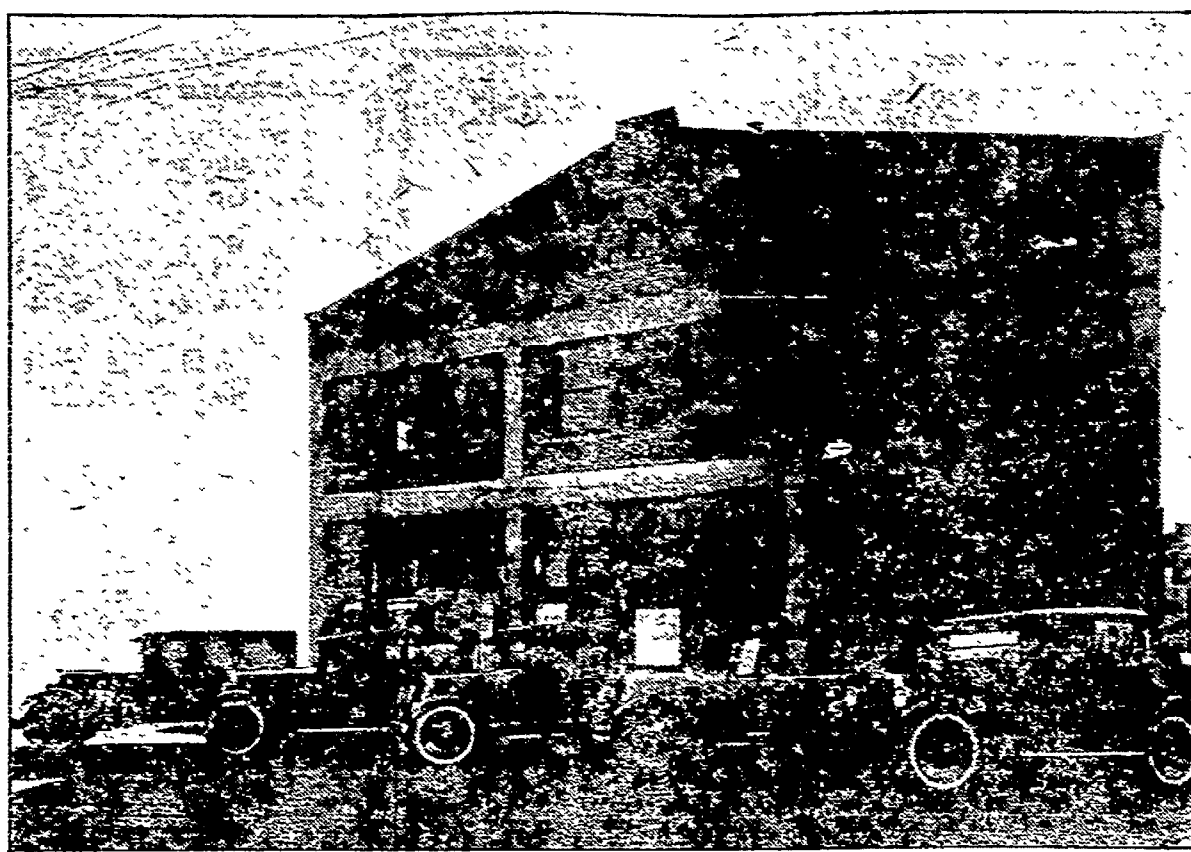

Registration figures as of December 1, 1922, showed the total number of commercial cars and trucks in use in the United States to be in excess of 1,000,000 of which fifty-one per cent were trucks.

The turn to the use of the one-ton truck for delivery and hauling purposes came quickly. Business firms who a few years back looked to the larger trucks because of their load carrying appeal soon discovered that delivery systems could be more easily adopted to the one-ton truck at less investment at the same time would afford more load moving units with increased efficiency and constant activity at the loading station.

Delivery systems were adapted to provide a variety of ranges so that each truck carried an average load over a maximum portion of its route and the economy of these frequent trips soon became apparent.

And while the commercial field has been constantly calling upon the one-ton truck to solve its delivery problems those in the agricultural field are rapidly turning to it for general farm use and in providing speedier and more economical transportation of products from the farm to the city.

In adapting their delivery and hauling systems to the one-ton truck, commercial and agricultural users

MAXWELL IS CHEAP ON 'GAS' EXPENSE

Maj. Croxall Claims To Have Journeyed 112 Miles On Four Gallons

Maj. Mark V. Croxall, of Tacoma, Washington has just found out how economical his good Maxwell really is.

The Major is one of Uncle Sam's revenue agents, and helps keep down the bootleg traffic in and around Tacoma.

Recently he filled up his tank (with gasoline) and set forth to the Hood Canal country. When he reached Quilcaine, 112 away, he thought he had best have it filled up again to play safe. "Fill her up," he commanded at the Service Station. The gasoline man pumped in four gallons and the tank overflowed. "Something wrong," said the Major. "No car" can go 112 miles on less than four gallons." Then he decided his Maxwell must have really accomplished this feat and he began to tell others about it. "And I sure got the horse laugh," said the Major in relating the incident. Just to be sure however, the major took exact measurements of his gasoline supply before returning to Tacoma. "And by golly," said the Major—I went 112 miles on exactly four gallons of gasoline, which I didn't believe possible because it was the first time I ever really knew what mileage my good Maxwell would give."

have found the Ford Truck chassis comes most nearly meeting all requirements. Its ease and simplicity of operation make it the most practical; its sure constant operation makes it the most dependable and its adaptability to all purposes make it the truck of greatest appeal. Then, too, its service facilities are universal.

THE "TROUBLE SHOOTER" TIMELY TIPS FOR THE AUTO OWNER

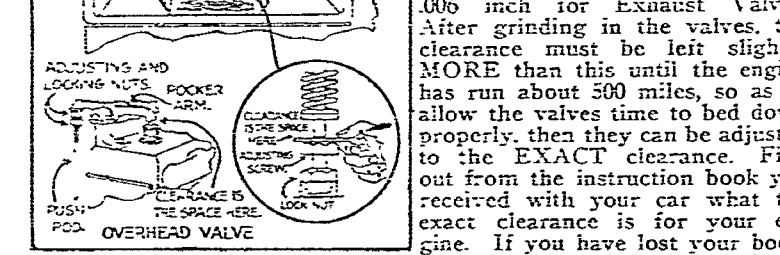

By E. H. SCOTT

How to Tune Up the Engine for Power and Economy

Most automobile owners like to have the engine adjusted so that when it is running, hardly a sound can be heard from it. Sometimes, however, this extreme silence may be at the sacrifice of economy and power, and may increase the cost of your overhauling and repair bills. This applies to one part of the engine only, the Valves.

If the clearance on the valve is adjusted TOO CLOSELY, the valve mechanism will be very silent, but the engine will not have the power and pep it should have, and the valves will require frequent grinding in. If the valve clearance is adjusted correctly, the valves should not require grinding in oftener than about once in every 5,000 miles.

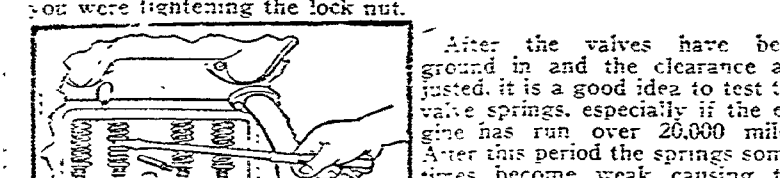

Here is the reason why a clearance must be left between the valves and the tappets. All metals expand when heated, some more than others. When the heat of the explosion strikes the heads of the valves, it heats them up and of course the whole valve expands slightly. To take care of this expansion, a slight space must be left between the bottom of the valve stem and the top of the valve tappet or rocker arm. If there is no space here, the valves are arranged at the top, it expands and cannot close properly, then leaks. This results in loss of compression. The amount of clearance allowed varies on different engines. On a Packard, for instance, the clearance is .002 inch, or about the thickness of a sheet of newspaper, while on a Ford the clearance is .020 inch, or about the thickness of two government post cards. The average clearance allowed in .004 inch for Intake Valves, and .006 inch for Exhaust Valves. After grinding in the valves, the clearance must be left slightly MORE than that until the engine has run about 500 miles, so as to allow the valves time to bed down properly, then they can be adjusted to the EXACT clearance. Find out from the instruction book you received with your car what the exact clearance is for your engine. If you have lost your book, write the maker of your car and request another copy. He will be pleased to supply you with one providing you give the year and model of your car. On an engine where the valves are arranged at the side of the cylinder, the clearance is checked between the bottom of the valve stem and the top of the tappet. On an overhead valve engine, the clearance is checked between the top of the valve stem and the bottom of the rocker arm. The illustration shows clearly the point where the clearance is checked on both types.

To check the clearance, both of the valves in the cylinder must be closed. Take out the spark plug and lay it on top of the cylinder with the wire attached, then crank the engine slowly with the hand crank. As soon as you notice a spark at the points of the plug stop, for then the valves will be in the correct position to check the clearance. If possible use a feeler gauge. You can buy one very cheaply at any hardware store. If none is available, the following will serve as a guide. A sheet of newspaper is about .003 inch thick, a Gillette razor blade is .005 inch thick, while a government post card is just about .010 inch thick. Great care must be exercised in setting the valve clearance to the exact limits recommended by the instruction book of your car. If you do not feel absolutely confident you can make this adjustment properly, do not attempt it, but have it done by a competent mechanic. If the adjustment is set TOO CLOSE, when the valve heats up and expands, it cannot close tightly on its seat and leaks badly. This is also the reason why some engines are hard to start and why valves require grinding in very frequently. If the adjustment is TOO GREAT, the valves will set up a noisy clicking, but it is better to have them with a little more clearance than not enough. If the valves are correctly adjusted, there may be a slight clicking sound when the engine is cold, but it will disappear when the engine is warmed up.

The clearance is adjusted when the valves are at the sides of the cylinder by loosening the lock nut on the tappet adjusting screw, or in an overhead valve engine, loosening the lock nut on the push rod. Turn the screw or rod up or down until the clearance is correct. When you have it right, hold the adjusting screw or rod perfectly stationary with one wrench, while you tighten the locking nut with the other. After you complete the adjustment, carefully check the clearance to make sure that the adjusting screw did not move while you were tightening the lock nut.

After the valves have been ground in and the clearance adjusted, it is a good idea to test the valve springs, especially if the engine has run over 20,000 miles. After this period the springs sometimes become weak causing the engine to run unevenly when idling and will also cause misfiring at high speeds sometimes. To test the condition of the springs, start the engine, then insert the blade of a screw driver between the coils of the spring and give the handle a twist. If the springs are too weak, the increased tension will cause the engine to run a little smoother and faster. The remedy is of course to fit a new valve spring.

CAR PRODUCTION IS AT NEW HIGH POINT

General Motors Points To Unusual Situation At Time When Production Usually Slumps

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President of General Motors, made the following statement in relation to current conditions in the motor car industry, as reflected by the operations of General Motors:

"Believing that any actual facts tending to throw light on business conditions will be helpful, it may be interesting to point out that the schedule of General Motors for October was approximately 51,000 cars, which include our Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oakland, Oldsmobile and GMC Truck. Preliminary reports indicate that we manufactured and sold about 57,500. Cars on hand on our account stood at 13,256 as of November first, an increase of 3,149 as compared with October first. Reports from our dealers as of November first are not yet available, we believe, however, that the stock in the field increased somewhat, but this is usual at this time of year, especially on the various open models.

"This performance constitutes a record for General Motors operations, the next largest month being May of this year, when we manufactured and sold 75,000 cars. The comparison is all the more interesting in view of the fact that normally production is much lower at this time of the year than in the spring months. "Our largest quantity producer, Chevrolet—takes inventory in November and its schedules are necessarily much reduced in consequence. Buick takes inventory in December and the balance of our car divisions, in either one or the other of these two months; hence our schedules are reduced in consequence.

"Our confidence in the future might be expressed in the statement that we are scheduling materials with a view to producing 85,000 cars in January. Naturally, conditions may arise which will require a readjustment of that schedule, but that is how the situation stands to-day."

JEWETT BROUGHAM SHIFTS DEMAND

Closed Car Sales Are 80 Per Cent Now As Compared To 60 Before

Closed car production of the Paige and Jewett plants has shifted from approximately sixty per cent of the total to eighty per cent of the total output in November.

With the making up of a tentative schedule for the next month comes the information from H. M. Jewett, president that the new 5-passenger Jewett Brougham was largely responsible for changing the ratio of production.

"The new Brougham," says Mr. Jewett, "with its 31 inch doors and high bake enamel finish, providing a lasting lustre, has taken the public fancy. Every dealer in the Paige and Jewett organization sold out his allotment of Broughams before October was half over. An increased number in November has been asked by all. This reception of a new model is almost without precedent."

The Brougham has been on the market since September 30th. At the time it was announced there were many skeptical persons, including dealers in the Jewett organization who said that it was not possible to build a high bake enamel finish job on a wooden frame. When the dealers, throughout the United States, found that the factory had actually accomplished this seemingly impossible feat, orders poured in," states Mr. Jewett. "As a result, we are unable to supply the demand until the November schedule of production starts."

The Ladies of the Evangelical Church will have a Food Sale, Saturday, Nov. 10, at Aug. Brandt Co.

WIND RESISTANCE CUTS GAS MILEAGE

Faster Driving Brings Consequent Sacrifice In Gasoline Economy

"Amazingly few motorists pause to consider in these days of good roads and refined automobiles that they are driving faster than they did five years ago with a consequent sacrifice of gasoline economy," says Mr. Schneider of the Appleton Auto Company.

"Tests and calculations show in different instances that a car driven at 50 miles per hour and having a certain body shape requires 2.2 horsepower to overcome the wind resistance alone. This same car driven at 30 miles per hour requires only 4.8 horsepower to overcome wind resistance. Another car with a different body shape requires 30 horsepower at 50 miles per hour and only 2.5 horsepower at 30 miles per hour. "If the drivers who persist in traveling at higher speeds would remember these facts they probably would cease to wonder why they don't seem to get the gasoline mileage they expect. Since many states have raised the limits on speed and mile after mile of trunk highway has been opened to motorists, the average driver has increased his rate of travel without realizing it."

"The modern car travels more comfortably at forty miles an hour than the older ones did at twenty. In fact, it is probably this factor of increased comfort which has made the average driver forget that it takes practically as much power to overcome inertia and wind resistance as it ever did. A little thought now and then on car speeds would undoubtedly convince the motorists that his machine operates with consistently surprising efficiency."

CHURCH BUYS SITE FOR NEW $60,000 HOME

Trinity English Lutheran Congregation Acquires Downtown Property

Construction of another new church home in Appleton probably will be started early next spring as result of action taken by Trinity English Lutheran church congregation at a meeting in the former chapel, now the Women's club playhouse Thursday night. The congregation voted to exercise the option it held on the 120 foot square, at the corner of Allen and Kimball streets, to build a new national school. The property is purchased from the Combined Lumber & Paper Co. which had intended to erect an office building on the site. The new church will cost between $50,000 and $60,000, it was said. The style of architecture has not been determined. A building committee of seven, with the Rev. P. L. Schreier as chairman, will be appointed and probably will have charge of the negotiations with the architect. Trinity English Lutheran church sold its property at the corner of Harris and Oneida streets a few months ago to Appleton Women's club and in turn purchased the former J. A. Hawes residence at the corner of College and Law streets. Recently this was sold to Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. There is a possibility that excavation for the new church will start this fall but work on the superstructure will not begin until spring.

QUARTER MILLION HOME LOAN GOAL

Building the assets to $200,000 this year and loaning of $250,000 for homes in 1924 are objects set by the board of directors of Appleton Building & Loan association at the monthly meeting Thursday evening in the office of George H. Beckley, secretary. Appleton's annual report on its loans amounting to $40,000 to apply on homes to be erected next spring. The association has loaned about $140,000 this year for this purpose. Members are being added rapidly. Mr. Beckley's report showed, especially among those who intend to build next year, and who have begun saving now.

WELCOME TAG TELLS OF ROAD VIOLATION

By Associated Press
Morgantown, W. Va. — "Welcome to our city" reads the tag Morgantown police attach to automobiles of visitors who violate the city traffic ordinances. That is what the first tag a green one says, but if the offense of incorrect or overtime parking is persistent or the traffic violation a serious one the red tag that summons the local motorist to police court will be used. The green tag, an answer to the complaint of visiting motorists that they were being fined for breaking ordinances of which they knew nothing, was an idea of the Morgantown chamber of commerce which had the tags printed and gave them to Chief of Police C. W. Smith who distributed them to his patrolmen. It reads: "The citizens of Morgantown, through its chamber of commerce, bid you welcome to our city. If we can render any service or in any way make your visit with us more pleasant, kindly call at the headquarters of our commercial organization. By the way, you have violated our city traffic ordinance and we suggest that you call at the chamber of commerce and secure a copy of our traffic regulations."

KOHL HELD IN JAIL UNTIL MILWAUKEE OFFICERS GET HIM

Political Lecturer Taken To Milwaukee After Hectic Day Here

A. R. Kohl Milwaukee newspaper man and political lecturer, was unable to shake himself loose from the entanglements of the law Thursday after his arrest Wednesday evening by Detective John Duval and his detention in the city lockup upon a warrant referred against him in Milwaukee charging him with selling mortgaged property. Detective Sergeant Joseph Moran of the Milwaukee police force came here Thursday afternoon and escorted the prisoner to Milwaukee where he will stand trial. Kohl was touring the state with an orchestra giving concerts, dances and lectures on taxation. He was to fill a speaking engagement in the Neenah armory Wednesday evening, but neither the efforts of four lawyers nor a writ of habeas corpus could induce Chief George T. Prim to surrender the prisoner. It was suspected that Kohl's arrest was inspired by a radical group of Republican Progressives.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair naturally dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. While wispy, gray, faded hair is not small, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant. adv.

EXPECT SCHOLARLY PRESENTATION OF SITUATION IN RUHR

Noted Milwaukee Lawyer Is Forum Speaker In Chapel Sunday Night

A scholarly exposition of the German version of the Ruhr invasion will be given by Attorney Robert Wild of Milwaukee, in Lawrence Memorial chapel Sunday evening. Mr. Wild, second speaker on the winter program of the People's forum, follows the presentation of the French version by Prof. Pitman B. Potter of the University of Wisconsin last Sunday evening.

Prof. Potter's justification of the French invasion of the Ruhr was well presented. He showed why the French took over the territory to secure themselves against German attack and to compel payment of war reparations. Mr. Wild is expected to answer these arguments and in addition he is expected to tell how the Germans feel about the seizing of their territory.

Those people who heard Prof. Potter surely will want to hear Mr. Wild. Then there will probably be hundreds of others who want to know what the Germans think of the French invasion. Mr. Wild has made a careful study of the situation and he has a great background of knowledge of the conditions in Europe.

The meeting begins at 7:30 with a musical program. A collection will be taken to defray expenses of the forum. There is no fixed charge. Inasmuch as the forum meeting cost about $85 each it is hoped by the committee in charge that attendants at the lecture will be liberal in their donations.

NEW BUILDING FALLING OFF PERMIT DEMAND SHOWS

The fall slump in building activities is noticeable at the office of the city building inspector where applications for building permits are now being received at the rate of only one a day. Thursday's permit to build a private garage at 703 North Division street was certified by G. E. Peetter, deputy building inspector, to William Kranzsch. It was the 703rd permit issued since March 20 when the office was opened, and total construction for the season is valued at $1,687,214.

CATHOLICS UNITE IN MOVEMENT FOR COMMUNITY HOME

Three Fraternal Organizations Confederate To Take Over Forester Home

When the Knights of Columbus, Thursday night, by an overwhelming vote, decided to confederate with the two other Catholic inter-parish organizations—the Catholic Order of Foresters and the Catholic Knights of Wisconsin—in maintaining a Catholic community center in Appleton, one of the largest projects undertaken by members of that denomination in Appleton practically was accomplished. Agitation for a Catholic community center has been going on for years but only recently was brought to a head.

The plan contemplates organization of a holding corporation which will take over the Forester home on Washington-st., now occupied exclusively by the Catholic Order of Foresters and its auxiliary and adjunct organizations. Each of the three cooperating fraternal societies will rent the lodge rooms for a specified number of evenings each year and the club rooms will be open to all members of the fraternal organizations and to all other Catholics who become "club members" at all times.

It was pointed out that none of the societies will lose its autonomy because of the confederation but will be free to carry on its social, educational and fraternal work as in the past. It will, however, bring about a cooperation of the societies in projects which are too large for any individual organization to handle independently, leaders in the movement said.

Acquisition of Forester home, when it is accomplished, probably is only the first step in a larger movement.

Seek Location For New Plant In Appleton

Appleton may obtain a new industry if a well lighted building with 4,000 to 5,000 square feet of floor space can be obtained, according to a business man who has been asked to find a location here. The concern is one that will employ about 20 highly skilled workers and will make a product in demand here but not now manufactured in Appleton. Suggestions are sought for possible sites for this plant, which can be conducted satisfactorily in a second story place.

In all probability, after the cooperative plan is given a thorough tryout and if found successful, a movement will be launched to establish a much more pretentious community center from which work among the Catholic people of Appleton can be directed. Final consummation of the project rests with the stockholders and directors of the Forester Home association, owners of Forester home. Committees were appointed from each of the three fraternal organizations to consider the project and it is understood that directors of the home association are heartily in accord with the movement.

RUNAWAY FORD TAKES DIVE INTO WATER NEAR MUD CREEK BRIDGE

Floyd Krause, son of Henry Krause, left the engine of his Ford car running at Mud creek bridge on the Spencer-rd while he went below the structure to look at his traps. He scarcely reached the water's edge before he heard a noise and looking up saw his car headed towards him. He reached the running board in time to go into the creek with the car. The windshield was all that protruded above the water. Two automobiles were required to get the car back on the highway.

Learn the Rice Recipes of the Famous Southern Mammies.

There is one thing that lingers in the memory of any one who has ever traveled South and tasted the cooking of the famous Southern mammies. It is that dish of white, tender, flaky rice with rich chicken or ham gravy.

In the South where rice is eaten as an all-the-year-around and every-day-in-the-year vegetable, it is served with gravy, or with golden butter melting through it. The dinner guest in Dixie, whether he will or no, is served rice and gravy with his meat.

There are many other savory Southern rice dishes that every cook should know how to prepare. These are included among the 50 recipes contained in the booklet this Bureau has for free distribution.

To secure this free booklet simply fill out and mail the coupon below, enclosing two cents in stamps for return postage. Write your name and address clearly.

ORIGINAL HOBO OF AIRCRAFT TRIBE

"Red Jack" Bartow All But Got
To St. Louis In Time
For Races

St. Louis — Meet America's premier hobo of the air, the first and foremost of his kind. He's "Red Jack" Bartow. And he's proud of his title.

What Jeff Davis, king of side-door Pullmans, is to railroading, Bartow is to aviation.

When he punctures a rubber-tired wheel on his ship, he replaces it with a common ordinary Ford wheel. When he needs gasoline to invigorate his round-trip airplane, he hocks an overcoat—or what have you? He has looked hard luck in the face and knows him well.

Though no trophy was offered for the event, "Red Jack" had the prize, hard luck story of all that were narrated at the air races here the other week. There have been a trophy of food, Bartow probably would have been hoarse. That's the way his luck runs.

HARD LUCK AND PLUCK

For a whole year he had concentrated on winning the St. Louis Flying Club trophy, an event for civilians and their planes. He saved his money and bought a modest plane or the installment plan. He had all but $15.00 when the time came to fly to St. Louis. The owners refused to yield the plane to him so long as a dollar remained unpaid.

"Red Jack" thought this poor sportsmanship. So did another airplane agent. This second agent gave him a plane and sold him the engine for it on time. Bartow began turning it up, sleeping about three hours daily. At last late one Saturday night, it sounded O. K. At dawn he departed triumphantly for St. Louis. His baggage consisted of three sandwiches, a bottle of water and less than $10. Sure, he would be in St. Louis in time for supper.

His time-payment engine misbehaved. Once he was forced to land in a Texas pine forest. Again over his cornfield. Spare parts consumed his $10. Bartow employed an engaging smile to "blum" meals from farmers at his involuntary stopping places.

HOCKS COAT FOR GAS

Near Gould, Ark., he replaced a blow-out tire with an aged flapper tire, obtained at a garage for nothing. A little bit farther on, he hocked his leather overcoat for 35 gallons of gasoline.

When he landed at St. Louis field, he was pounced upon by sentries and threatened with court-martialing. Unwittingly, he had come to earth when the field signals indicated he should have done otherwise. Then came the last blow. He had arrived five minutes too late to enter the race. The planes already were in the air.

"Red Jack" is a philosopher. He

As proof of the purity of our milk we ask you to hold our bottles up to the sunlight and examine them carefully—if you can see small specks of dirt, manure, dust, etc., in the bottom of the bottle and around the edge, such milk is declared by experts to be unfit for use and especially bad for the baby.

The health departments of most every city in the United States are trying to their utmost efforts to have clean healthy milk produced and great credit is due them for such good work.

Help them by getting clean, pure milk. Insist on milk having no sediment in the bottom of the bottles.

"THE FOOL"

BY CHANNING COLLOCK

"What are you reading?" he asked. "Something about 'The Fool'." "Are you going into the baby business?" he man asked, smiling. "No, I was a hansom driver. Backs—man and boy—49 years. Then taxis—come in—and I went out."

"What'd you do then?" the visitor was inquisitive.

"Took to drink," said Grubby bluntly.

"Well, then drink with me," observed Mack. "What's your job?" It was Grubby's turn to question.

"Well, I was in the movies," Mack replied. "That is, I was going to be but the fellow that was going to put up the money, his mother didn't die after all. Before that, I sold bricks—books, too. And life insurance. Never had any luck. Who wrote that 'Luck is work'?"

"Mr. Gilchrist."

"Well, I've worked at 50 things and look at me. I figure the world owes me a living, and here I am waiting for a bite of grub and an overcoat. It is true this guy'll give you an overcoat."

"He will if he's got one. You just come and help yourself, and talk things over. Coffee and sandwiches every night—and supper and sermons on Wednesdays."

"Teaching!" said Mack, rising. "I'll come back tomorrow."

Grubby was reassuring him when Mary Margaret entered. She was a mere wisp, gliding on crutches, 15 pathetically pretty. She found cups and saucers on a shelf and busied herself with them.

"Don't he try to reform you?" queried Mack of Grubby skeptically. He hadn't noticed the girl.

"Naw," said Grubby. "The way he talks you'd think you was as good as him. He says he's going to start me up in the taxi business."

"What's the catch? There must be some graft somewhere."

"If you ask me, I think the poor gent's got a few nuts in his nose bag." Grubby described a circle over his head with his hand. "A little bit batty. That's what I say."

"And that's what you got no idea to say, Grubby," Mary Margaret reproached the two with look.

"He's been good to you, ain't he?" "That's why we think he's nutty," said Grubby. "What's he do it for?"

"'Cause he loves you," said the girl, simply.

"What for?" asked Grubby unconprehendingly.

"God knows," mocked Mary Margaret. She hobbled to the table and began to set it. "It's after 7 now," she sighed, "and the meeting half an hour away and he ain't had a bite to eat since morning." She paused. "He went to see a man who killed himself."

"Mack laughed. She looked at him curiously. 'I mean—tried to. It was in the papers and he read it and says: 'I want to talk to that man.'"

She was still looking at Mack and now she recalled his words.

"Graft," she said, wincingly. "Why he didn't even have rent money yesterday and he was despoiled. He ain't had money to get himself a pair of shoes, and nobody helps him, or comes near him, but you burns that roast him behind his back."

The door opened and George F. Goodkind looked in rather curiously. "I didn't roast him. I just said he was crazy," Grubby dismissed the subject, then looked at the intruder.

"Mr. Gilchrist?" Goodkind asked, stepping in.

"He'll be here any minute," answered Mary Margaret. "Won't you come in?"

Goodkind walked to the table. Grubby buried himself in his magazine and Mack walked toward the platform. Goodkind sat down, but with an air that indicated he didn't want to.

"Take a magazine," the girl said. "I got to make the coffee." She turned to Grubby. "You can come and carry it up in about 15 minutes," she said. She looked toward the shelf in time to see Mack flinging a loaf of sugar. "Graft," she muttered. "You ought to know." And she hobbled off, singing.

"Think she'll tell him?" Mack queried of Grubby.

"Naw," wheezed Grubby. "Any way, he don't care. He says we're all brothers in God." Mack made a grimace. "Yeh—" continued Grubby. "that's what he told Jimmy Curran—brothers in God—and Jimmy just up from pinching a guy's pants. Jim says he's clean loco. Guess what e's got in the back yard."

"What?"

"Tennis. And handball games for us. And, in the other two houses, we's got flats, with bathtubs, and the rents ain't what they ask row for tillin' a horse. Why wouldn't I say he was crazy? Everybody says so at Mary Margaret."

The subject of the conversation entered on the heels of the sootling. Apparently he had not heard. He rubbed his hands from the cold. He wasn't warmly dressed—in fact, he looked a bit threadbare.

"Hello, Grubby," he greeted, hanging his coat on an old rack over an umbrella that almost fell as the framework swayed. "You're early—and you've brought a friend with you." He advanced and shook Mack's hand. "You're welcome! Now he recognized his other visitor. "Well, Mr. Goodkind. You're welcome, too. Have you come down to look us over?"

"I've come down on personal business," said Goodkind abruptly.

"Oh, yes," said Daniel. He turned to Grubby. "There's a box of books in the hall, Grubby. How would you and your friend like to—"

Grubby squirmed a bit.

"I've got to help with the coffee," he said.

"I see," said Daniel. He turned to Mack. "And you?"

Mack made no move to help, but advanced smiling.

"I just wanted to speak to you a minute."

"All right, after the meeting," said Gilchrist.

"I wanted to ask you—" put in Mack, still smiling.

"After the meeting," said Gilchrist with emphasis. He turned to Goodkind. "What's you sit down?"

Mack scowled at Daniel's back. "Thanks," he muttered scornfully and scowled toward the door. He paused as he reached it and looked enviously at Gilchrist's overcoat hanging on the rack. He looked back, rat-like. Then, stealthily, he reached for it, caught the arm of it and pulled it toward him.

Daniel and Goodkind were concerned with each other. Mack, who had just dropped in tonight, said, "Because I've been intending to call on you. But there's so much to do here—"

A clatter interrupted him. The coat had come loose from the hook, but with it had come the shabby umbrella and it crashed to the floor with considerable racket.

Daniel turned to look into the sheepish eyes of a thief.

There was neither anger nor vengeance in his face—there was a smile.

CHAPTER XVII
Goodkind Threatens

Gilchrist surveyed the thief for a moment in silence. There wasn't even reproach in his eyes. His calm, his look of kindness, totally disarmed the man. He dropped the coat and surrendered, waiting for denunciation, brutality, arrest, he knew not what. Gilchrist made no move toward him.

"I thought you'd gone," Daniel said at last.

The thief had fled utterly—but the man was still there.

"...I—I wanted—" he faltered. "You wanted my coat," said Gilchrist calmly.

Mack smiled at the simple explanation. He was relieved and somehow he felt very warm.

"I'm so glad you said so," said Gilchrist without a trace of irony. Mack looked up, surprised. "Because," went on Daniel, "if you hadn't, and I hadn't understood, you might have been tempted to take it without asking—and then you'd have been so sorry and ashamed." Mack wanted to lower his head, but he couldn't. The other's eyes held him.

"A man couldn't come into another man's house, and be welcomed, and then take the other man's coat, without saying 'Thank you'—could he?" Mack only stared. "And of course, if we're going to pull ourselves together and get out of a hole, we must keep our self-respect."

"I wouldn't steal—" started Mack apologetically.

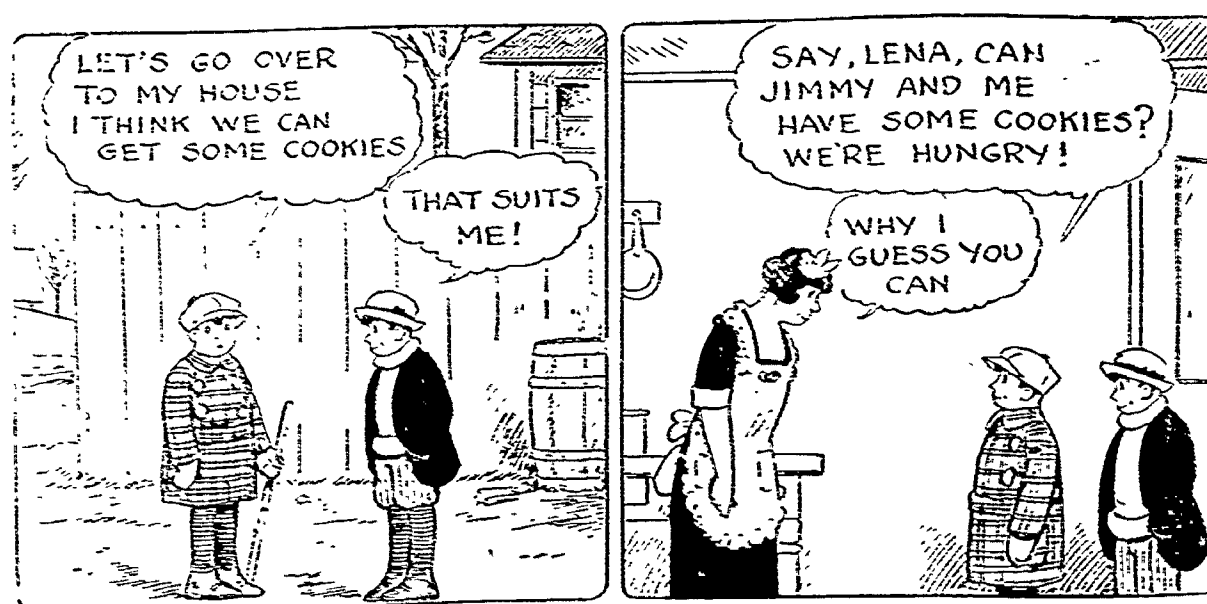

"You couldn't," said Daniel placidly. He stooped and picked it up. "It's your coat. You asked for it, and I gave it to you. When you've worn it into a good job—come back and help me give another to someone who needs it as you do." He held up the coat for Mack to don.

"I will," said the man, pushing an arm through a sleeve, still bewildered beyond words.

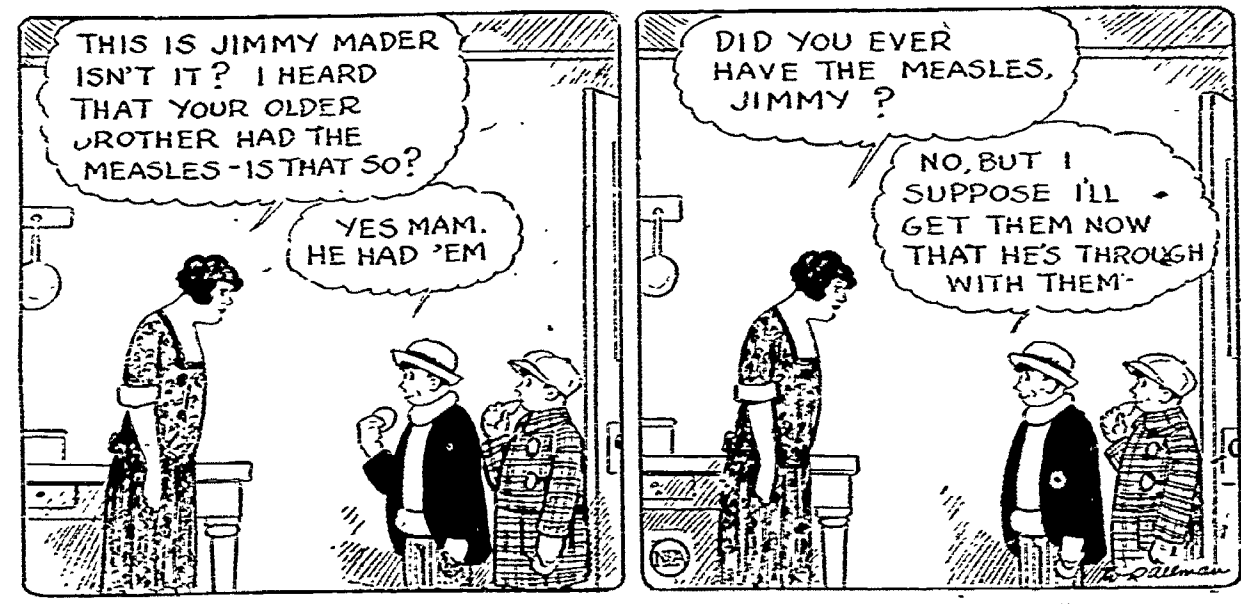

"Of course you will," said Gilchrist, slapping him on the back. "Good night."

Past 40?
Scorn Ideas
Of Flapper

Time For Older Women To Stop
Imitating Youngster, Club
Leader Says

New York — "You who are past 40, look into your mirror and count 10 before following the fashion dictates of the girl of 16."

This is the advice given to women by Mrs. Albert H. Hildreth of Syracuse, N. Y., former president of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs.

The thirteen-year-old is the arbiter of fashions today, she believes, and in spite of their experience and their accumulation of wisdom, women of middle age are easily wheedled into fashions by the flapper—just because they don't think.

Mrs. Hildreth believes that the beauty of the woman of 40 is as distinctive as that of the sub-deb, but the sartorial requirements of the bud and the blossom are different.

"The woman of 40 need only be as firm about what she wants as the girl of 16," she says, "to get a fair deal from fashion."

MIND SET

"Youth doesn't compromise. The flapper flatter accepts or discards a fashion. She makes her demands so insistent that she hammers them into the consciousness of fashion designers.

"Older women know what they want just as well as the flapper does, but they accept substitutes."

Mature women may note the dictates of the young girl in dress, but they should use discretion in following them, Mrs. Hildreth thinks.

"But don't go to the other extreme," she cautions, "and say that every style dictated by the young girl is foolish. This is poor sportsmanship. Saleswomen tell me that the average young girl allowed to select her own frock will invariably select a simple one. It is the mothers who want the frills and the furbelows."

"The young girl keeps a knowing eye on line and color effects. She knows how to give a certain individual touch to any frock."

SHE'S RIGHT

"The flapper is nine-tenths right in her opinion of simplicity, but mother must remember that this can be overdone, particularly if the figure has lost its slenderness."

"New shades are very fascinating, too, but they also call for discretion. Love-apple red, for instance, is not for mother."

"The rule of the young girl in dress is here," she concludes, "let us be good sports and face it, but let her be submissive."

"We can make ourselves a power too, if we take our stand."

Pumps And Low Shoes For Show Not
For Perfect Health, Follies Actress Says

BY MARIAN HALE

New York — The first aim to the perfect foot is the high lace boot, according to the petite Daphne Pollard, whose feet have taken prizes in England and Australia, and now in America.

Prepare for a shock when I tell you the size. She actually keeps those perfect Tolly's in a size 13—girl's size!

But then she is only four feet eight inches tall—or I should say, short—and 95 is the highest number she's ever been able to raise on the scales. But in their small way, her feet are declared perfect.

And she attributes their perfection to the high boot most of us have discarded.

"Nothing like it," she declares, "to keep the ankle slim and give the arches support. No, I know they aren't fashionable, but they should be. Low pumps worn constantly bring the larger ankle in time, that's certain."

"I haven't always been as particular about my feet as I am now," she goes on. "For a while I was enslaved by the high-heeled pump, and wore it constantly. Then I noticed backaches and hurt insteps. So I switched to low heels and exaggerated 'sensible' effects and while my feet were perfectly comfortable I never looked very smart myself."

PURPOSE FOR EACH
— "Now I vary the daily shoe program. I wear high boots when I have much walking to do—and I take many bikes. For golf I wear low, flat shoes that give my toes a chance to spread out and exercise as they should. And I dance every day in my bare feet."

"This way I give my feet plenty of exercise and keep them healthy, so I can wear high heels when I want to dress up and not be injured by them."

This diminutive comedienne, now a star in the "Greenwich Village Follies," is an Australian by birth, and has spent much of her time in England. But since her first visit to America, years ago, she has been a patron of American shoe dealers.

"No matter what country I live in, I have all my shoes made here," she confides. "English shoes are ugly and Parisian models too stubby, but American lasts are just right. Now wonder everyone marvels at the American women's feet!"

PART OF COSTUME
Miss Pollard believes shoes emphasize the costume just as hats do. "I had my choice between a new frock and a new pair of shoes," she said, "and I chose the shoes. No matter how low I happened to be on frocks—and believe me, I get low."

"I love old clothes, and prefer to wear them, except shoes. Unless my feet have the best money can buy I never feel well dressed. I believe most women feel this innate vanity about their feet, and that is why they buy models too small and bring on corns, bunions and the rest of the ills the feet are heir to."

"Small shoes," she concludes, "never disguise a large foot, but well-fitting, once bring out the best in any foot and give the final touch to any outfit."

DAPHNE POLLARD

She's Jill Of All Trades
And Master Of Them Too

Putnam, Tex. — When Mrs. Mary Guyton isn't assigning guests to rooms in her hotel here, she's in her restaurant superintending the menu or serving customers.

When she isn't in her millinery store showing a woman the latest creation, she's probably at her dairy with her 12 Holstein cows.

When she isn't selling some of her pigs and poultry, she's at home mothering her eight-year-old daughter, Mary.

Or she might be out managing an oil field of 200 wells, drawing maps, leasing acreage or fixing drilling contracts.

And when she isn't occupied in any of these capacities, she may be found furnishing advice to her Putnam neighbors.

Outside of that, Mrs. Guyton has all the time in the world to herself.

Yet in an emergency, she will go out and nurse a sick man or woman to health. For she is the only trained nurse in Callahan county. She studied actual practice at the death of her husband a surgeon.

COUNSELOR, TOO

Mrs. Guyton comes from Trenton, N. J., and has been here only five years. In that time she has won the confidence of the farmers and oil men in this region to such an extent that they come to her with their troubles and problems, tell her their secrets and follow her advice like an expert.

Her greatest interest lies in the oil district which she manages for the men who own the wells. She owns three wells herself, and takes as much interest in those of the others as she does in her own. She is what the men call their "good angel."

And her hotel is no small, ramshackle affair either. It is of Spanish mission style, with a large lobby, spacious dining-room and contains 50 rooms. That's an imposing hostelry for a town the size of Putnam.

"Hard, persistent work, patience, a square deal for everybody." This is how she explains she manages her varied affairs. "I try to help people and I enjoy it. And I find they remember my help."

LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT
DEAR JACK:

Glad to get your letter. I'm awfully sorry for you, old chap. You are certainly getting your share of trouble. My advice to you, now that you know that Leslie is getting every possible care that could be given her and that it is given with much better methods than you could give it is to settle down to your work. Do not stay in the sick room too much. It will keep you from thinking about yourself, and help you to lay up a few dollars for Leslie's benefit when she recovers. If you turn to your work with a will.

Oh, yes. I know that it rather hurts your pride to think that Leslie's father is paying for your wife's illness, but it would hurt your heart worse if you had to depend upon your own resources to reimburse the nurses and specialists who are caring for Leslie now.

Leslie's father, of course, would not see his daughter want for the slightest thing to make her comfortable and I consider that you are very fortunate in falling in love with a girl whose father has as much money as Leslie's has.

By the way, I have had a letter from Paula Perier. (Glad to inject P. P. into your life just at present.) I thought you might perhaps be interested to know that she is going out to Hollywood to go into pictures. You remember she always did photograph pretty well and I think she will strike her salt out there.

She has said nothing to me about the child since that first wire saying one had been born. I haven't the slightest idea whether it is alive or dead.

Life's a queer thing, isn't it, Jack? Here is Leslie who, if what you told me is correct, is slowly dying because her child, born in respectability and wedlock, was taken away from her and poor little Paula, who probably did not want her child, to whom it was a shame and disgrace, is saddled with one.

Treat it with as much derision as we may, after all, old chap. It is the woman who pays.

Honestly, Jack, I believe if I were a woman I would start out to give every man I know as much trouble as possible. I hear you laughing as you read this and I know you are saying, "What an old sentimentalist you are, Syd."

Perhaps I am, Jack, and it is because I am, that I have never felt like indicting myself upon a woman. I have never seen a man yet who was worthy the least worthy woman and when I marry I want a good woman for my wife.

Whenever I find myself falling in love I find myself asking, "What have you got to give a good woman?" and I draw back immediately. We ask so much and give so little, we become bored so easily and all the while it never enters our minds that by any possibility we are stupid as unmes ourselves.

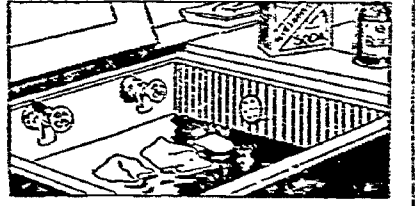

There, I'm going to stop writing. It isn't like me to sermonize, you know that, Jack. Neither do I set myself up in a position as one of those "better than thou" critics, but, somehow this blooming coincidence of babies has got my goat. Yours, STD

TOMORROW—John Prescott answers Sydney Carton. The tragedy of a lost child.

Household
Suggestions

SILK UNDERWEAR
To wash silk stockings and silk underwear, first soak them for 10 minutes in fairly strong borax water and then wash in a suds of white soap with as little rubbing as possible.

SODA IN BLUING
A lump of soda dissolved in the blue water when washing clothes will prevent any blue stain from remaining on the garments.

LONGER WEAR
Silk and wool garments will last much longer if they are washed or cleaned before becoming too badly soiled.

COPPER KETTLES
Before cleaning copper kettles fill them with boiling water. They will polish more quickly.

Not Useful,
But Pretty

The shredded sleeve shown so charmingly by the fashionable young woman in the picture is seen on many a new and fashionable frock. It is interesting and does not pretend to be useful—ornament is its only aim. The drape, also new, is a one-sided affair that ripples down from one's hip to one's skirt hem. This drape and this sleeve are both new—the gown that has them is doubly fashionable.

CHEESE CAKES
Cheese cake is really as "old as the hills," but has been so little used for years past that it will "seem new" to many cooks.

I dare say cheese cake of some sort graced many a Thanksgiving dinner in colonial days. For cheese cakes were transplanted from "merrie old England" along with "bubble and squeak" and "road in the hole" and many other delightful concoctions.

There are "Folkstone cheese cakes" as well as apple, almond, lemon and just plain cheese cake. They are baked in individual cakes or one large one. And the best part about it is that cheese cake is a form of American pie.

ALMOND CHEESE CAKES
Two cups sour milk, 1 cup sugar, 4 eggs (yolks), 1/2 cup blanched and chopped almonds, 1 lemon, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1/4 teaspoon salt, rich pastry.

The milk should be thick and firm. Scald and strain through cheese-cloth. Mix sugar, salt and cornstarch thoroughly. Beat yolks of eggs with dry ingredients. Add to curd and mix lightly. Add grated rind and juice of lemon, almonds and a grating of nutmeg. Turn into party pans lined with pastry and bake in a moderate oven about half an hour. The mixture should be firm to the touch when it is done.

APPLE CHEESE CAKES
Six apples, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 eggs, 1 lemon, rich pastry.

Pare and core apples. Cut in thin slices. Put in a sauce pan with just enough water to prevent burning and cook until tender. Rub through a fine sieve. Add sugar and butter and mix well. Reheat, adding the grated rind and juice of the lemon. Stir in the yolks of three eggs and the white of one. Beat well and pour into party pans lined with pastry. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. (Copyright, 1923, NEA Service Inc.)

DRAPERY EFFECT
Very large revers are seen on some of the newest coat dresses. These are very soft, however, and give the effect of a drapery.
